Case SU-7-14; Pertains to the review of the proposed Pleasant Ridge Wind Energy Project as this proposed project is being referred to the commission for investigation as to the manner in which the proposed location and character of the special use will affect the comprehensive plan. This review is only on how this project relates to how this application is compatible with the Livingston County Comprehensive Plan. The Livingston County Regional Planning Commission's recommendation in this zoning case is a non-binding recommendation of which the Livingston County Zoning Board of Appeals and the Livingston County Board can consider this recommendation as they see appropriate. The zoning administrator informed the planning commission members that this zoning case is an ongoing review during hearings being conducted by the Livingston County Zoning Board of Appeals. It has been noticed that some of the Livingston County Regional Planning Commission members have been attending some of the zoning board of appeals hearings pertaining to Livingston County Zoning Case SU-7-14. During this planning commission review it was noted that concerned citizens had not finished providing information at the zoning board of appeals hearing, and it was pondered as to if more evidence is needed to be presented to allow for a complete RPC review.

Mr. Schopp presented his report regarding Livingston County Zoning Case SU-7-14 – Pleasant Ridge Energy Project. As part of this report were copies of the Livingston County Comprehensive Plan, a copy of the applicant's report on Comprehensive Plan Compatibility Study, Pleasant Ridge Energy Project, Livingston County, Illinois. The planning commission members had previously been advised that they could find the entire Pleasant Ridge Wind Energy Project application and material related to this project on the Livingston County website. As part of his report review Mr. Schopp in regard to the Livingston County Comprehensive Plan, Mr. Schopp remarked about the plans language on economic growth, Agricultural Land Goals with the areas of commercial and industrial goals, utility goals and open space and recreational goals also being part of the comprehensive plan. The agricultural base of the county was mentioned along with the comprehensive plan purpose. Then the Agricultural Land Use plan was mentioned, along with the zoning ordinance, and a checklist for analysis for proposed land use changes.

In regards to the applicant’s Comprehensive Plan compatibility study, the project description, along with the applicant’s review of the comprehensive plan, the applicant’s assessment of this section were noted. The second draft recommendation reflected that this application is not compatible with the comprehensive plan.

The regional planning commission members discussed this project. Dee Woodburn noted that in the last paragraph of page 8 of the applicant’s Stantec document open space issues are mentioned, and impacts to wildlife is mentioned. Mrs. Woodburn expressed her concerns about this impact statement, when she compared this information to the information provided in the INDR report regarding this zoning case. The planning commission discussion then went to Section 4.1 on page 42 of the Livingston County Comprehensive Plan, the Zoning Ordinance section of the Comprehensive Plan. This discussion was based on the last sentence of the first paragraph of this section which states “… Under this broad objective, zoning regulations have four specific purposes: to promote health, safety, and the general welfare; to assure orderly development; to protect existing property improvement; and to conceive and enhance land values throughout the County. Referring back to page 8 of the applicant’s Stantec document in the second paragraph in which cemeteries in the area are mentioned. Planning Commission member Keith Bahler mentioned that he had attended some of the zoning board of appeals hearings for this zoning case and he expressed his concerns. The residential goals of the comprehensive plan were mentioned, and how the proposed development could have an effect on residential development and property values. The review of past projects was mentioned, along with a discussion relating to setback distances. The projects effect on value was mentioned, as was perception issues. Planning Commission member Richard Runyon then commented about the fourth bullet point on page 12 of the applicant’s Stantec report. This refers to municipal plans, and as Village President of the Village of Chatsworth president Mr. Runyon expressed that he did not believe that the Village of Chatsworth had been contacted about this statement so he questioned the value of this report. The planning commission discussion on this application, at times reflected on health safety, welfare and general compatibility of the application.
